

---

Tourney 5/20/08

Posted by buz bait - 2008/05/23 01:15

---

I fished a small tourney on tues night and I'm happy to say I came away with a win. 5 fish that went 14.5 lbs. It was a pretty small tourney, but against some very good fisherman. I still won some money and got to have a great day fishing. The main thing is that I came back with a win after blanking in the first one of these series so now I got some respect back. its amazing what doing some pre-fishing does when you know your going to fish one.:laugh:

=====

Re:Tourney 5/20/08

Posted by The Original B3 - 2008/05/28 04:59

---

Congrat's on the win. What was your secret to success? What type and brand of lures put money in the bank for you?

=====

Re:Tourney 5/20/08

Posted by buz bait - 2008/05/28 23:01

---

my lure that won it for me was definately a karu Lures vibrashock. I started off close to the main river channel where I found good numbers of large fish holding. The dropping water really screwed that up and almost made it unfishable. I did however manage 2 small keepers and an 8lb pike on a black cherry vibrashock. I chose the black cherry because of the dingy water. After about 1.5 hrs with nothing else I made a run to small backwater lake with a dredged canal about 5-6ft deep in the middle with everything else being a shallow pad field. I switched to a more natural colored vibrashock and burned it along the weededge while my buddy took a crigger craw vibrashock and hopped it off the bottom. We both caught about 8 fish in that spot and had a limit half way through the 4 hour tourney and were culling the rest of the night.

=====